Reading: Over the years, doctors, scientists and researchers have confirmed that reading is a stress-reducing activity that can lower your heart rate and blood pressure. It's been proven to improve people's memories, increase brain power, and even enhance empathic skills. Reading has even been linked to longer life spans.

1. Reading heightens brain connectivity.
2. It puts readers in the characters' shoes, figuratively and biologically.
3. It rewires the brain and creates new white matter.
4. It increases the capacity of your working memory.
5. It expands a reader's attention span.
